NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

AUSTIN -- The State Bar of Texas has announced a series of public hearings to invite input from the public and attorneys regarding the issue of whether Texas lawyers should be required to disclose whether they have professional liability insurance (PLI).

The Supreme Court of Texas has asked the State Bar of Texas Board of Directors to recommend by Feb. 5, 2010, whether Texas lawyers should be required to disclose PLI coverage. If the board recommends such a requirement, the Court has asked the board to suggest the method by which attorneys should be required to disclose such information. The State Bar Board will vote on this issue at its Jan. 29, 2010 meeting.

The State Bar will collect input on both sides of this issue via public hearings and other avenues through the remainder of 2009. The board will use the input to assist it in making a recommendation to the Supreme Court.

A public hearings will be held in San Antonio:

Wednesday, October 14, 2009
Noon - 2 p.m.
Courtroom, 5th Floor
Bexar County Courthouse (Old Courthouse)
100 Doloresa
San Antonio, TX 78205

Event Description:

AUSTIN – The State Bar of Texas has announced a series of public hearings to invite input from the public and attorneys regarding the issue of whether Texas lawyers should be required to disclose whether they have professional liability insurance (PLI). The Supreme Court of Texas has asked the State Bar of Texas Board of Directors to recommend by Feb. 5, 2010, whether Texas lawyers should be required to disclose PLI coverage. If the board recommends such a requirement, the Court has asked the board to suggest the method by which attorneys should be required to disclose such information. The State Bar Board will vote on this issue at its Jan. 29, 2010 meeting. The State Bar will collect input on both sides of this issue via public hearings and other avenues through the remainder of 2009. The board will use the input to assist it in making a recommendation to the Supreme Court.

Event Details:

The State Bar of Texas is inviting public input regarding the issue of whether Texas lawyers should be required to disclose whether they have professional liability insurance (PLI). A public hearing on the issue will be held Oct. 29 in Lubbock.

The Supreme Court of Texas has asked the State Bar of Texas Board of Directors to recommend by Feb. 5, 2010, whether Texas lawyers should be required to disclose PLI coverage. If the board recommends such a requirement, the Court has asked the board to suggest the method by which attorneys should be required to disclose such information. The State Bar Board will vote on this issue at its Jan. 29, 2010 meeting.

The State Bar will collect input on both sides of this issue via public hearings and other avenues through the remainder of 2009. The board will use the input to assist it in making a recommendation to the Supreme Court.

State Bar of Texas wants public's input

By Fanny Chirinos chirinosf@caller.com/886-3759

Tuesday, October 20, 2009

CORPUS CHRISTI — The State Bar of Texas wants input via e-mail from the public and attorneys on whether lawyers should be required to disclose if they have professional liability insurance.

The state bar has until Feb. 5 to give the Supreme Court of Texas its recommendation. The bar board of directors will vote at its Jan. 29 meeting. If they recommend it, the board also will recommend a plan by which lawyers disclose the information.

Seven public meetings are being held throughout the state. Although a meeting will not be in Corpus Christi, the local community can submit information to the bar board by visiting <http://blog.texasbar.com> or e-mailing statebarpresident@texasbar.com.
